Since we were talking about a space rescue, I thought I'd bring up this little plot bunny we dropped back in Chapter 10.

Quote:"Along with over 200 passengers, flight 7002 carries two giant pandas, a gift from China to Chile. Relations between the two countries have been strained, since both are competing to win the lucrative Glenn space station contract. The station will assemble the vehicle for the next Mars mission...

Maybe this "under construction" space station could be used as part of the space rescue. I know it would be very much like our previous station rescues, but we could put some kind of spin on it.

What do y'all think?
